

Youn Hee Jeong is an Urban and Regional Planning PhD Candidate at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Youn Hee conducts research and contributes to metrics development, data analysis and other tasks as part of the Farmers Market Metrics project team. Youn Hee was the lead researcher in the development of a review of the literature on farmers markets and data collection that informed the planning for this project.

Since 2001, Youn Hee has worked as an associate research fellow of the Korean Research Institute for Human Settlements (KRIHS) in Urban Policy and Planning Research Division. She received a Master's degree in Urban Planning and a B.S. in Urban Planning and Engineering from Yonsei University in Korea.