2016 National Farmers Market Week Media Kit

It's time to get ready for our favorite time of year – National Farmers Market Week (NFMW)! NFMW is an annual celebration sponsored by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) that highlights the important role farmers markets play in the nation's food system. Now in its 17th season, NFMW always lands on the first full week of August, with this year's celebration running August 7-13.

NFMW allows farmers markets to take center stage on a national level and is an opportunity for all markets to showcase the impacts they make in their communities.

Farmers markets:

- Preserve America's rural livelihood and farmland
- Stimulate local economies
- Increase access to fresh, nutritious food
- Support healthy communities
- Promote sustainability

FMC is honored to help our community of farmers market leaders spread the good news about their markets. Each year, FMC provides more than 8,500 markets with free tools, guides and marketing materials to jump-start their promotional efforts for NFMW.

This year, FMC is also holding a Poster Contest and Instagram Contest in conjunction with NFMW. Details on each are included in this media kit.

With your help, we can make this year's celebration the best to date. This toolkit provides links to our collection of resources markets and organizations can use to promote NFMW and/or the events happening at markets in your community. Thank you for your support. Here's to another successful NFMW!

Farmers Market Coalition Helps Markets Prepare for National Farmers Market Week
Offers free tools for planning and promoting events

July 12, 2016 - The Farmers Market Coalition (FMC), a national nonprofit committed to strengthening farmers markets, announces today the launch of its annual campaign to help farmers markets nationwide prepare for 17th annual National Farmers Market Week (NFMW, August 7-13), a yearly celebration sponsored by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) that highlights the important role farmers markets play in the nation's food system. The campaign provides more than 8,500 farmers markets across the country with promotional tools, guides and materials they can use to promote events happening at their markets during the weeklong celebration.

“National Farmers Market Week allows farmers markets to take center stage on a national level and is an opportunity for all markets to showcase the impacts they make in their communities. We want to make it easy for all market managers, regardless of funds or capacity, to spread the word by providing them with these easy-to-use, customizable tools,” said FMC’s executive director, Jen Cheek.

FMC’s resources are free and available online. The toolkit includes templates for creating newsletters and press releases, sample social media posts and graphics, farmers market facts and talking points, as well as information on how to invite local officials to market events.

Farmers market-themed merchandise is also available for purchase to hand out at events, give away as prizes and more.

This year, USDA Agricultural Market Service (AMS) also released new NFMW branding materials markets can download free of charge to create marketing materials such as posters, emails and buttons.

“We’re thrilled USDA AMS is providing this easy, cost-effective way for managers to develop beautiful marketing materials for their market,” said Cheek. “We hope the combination of USDA and FMC resources streamlines promotional efforts for markets nationwide.”

In addition, FMC is also hosting a poster contest designed to highlight the creativity and hard work farmers markets already put into promoting their venue. Markets of the winning posters are eligible for $1500 in cash prizes and will be featured at events in Washington D.C. during NFMW. Contest deadline is July 24.

As demand for local food continues to swell, farmers markets in the United States have nearly doubled in number over the past ten years, increasing from 4,384 to 8,562, according to the USDA. This year, FMC celebrates its tenth anniversary and is heartened by the progress farmers markets have made in the past decade, as well as the impacts they continue to make in both rural and urban communities. Research indicates farmers markets are not only economic drivers and food access hubs for communities across the country, but play a vital role to support rural livelihoods, preserve farmland, and protect the environment.

“As farmers markets continue to grow across America, they’re also becoming critical community assets and public spaces that bring families from all backgrounds together to socialize, purchase healthy, affordable food and support their local farmer,” said Cheek. “FMC is proud to be a voice for our nation’s farmers markets and support their efforts toward continued growth. We’re excited for what the next decade will bring.”
